

ALORA SUMMIT 3.0!!

About MUN

Model United Nations (MUN) is an engaging academic simulation of the United Nations, where students step into the roles of global diplomats to debate pressing international issues. Participants represent different countries in various committees, research their assigned nation's policies, and collaborate to draft innovative solutions in the form of resolutions. MUN not only enhances public speaking and critical thinking skills but also fosters diplomacy, leadership, and global awareness. It provides a dynamic platform for young minds to exchange ideas, build confidence, and develop a deeper understanding of international relations in a professional yet interactive environment

What is ALORA?

Alora is not just a Model United Nations—it is a movement shaped by ambition, vision, and the power of youth. What once started as a simple idea has grown into a thriving platform that has proudly hosted over 1000+ delegates across its previous editions, each contributing to a legacy of meaningful debate and global awareness. Alora has consistently brought together driven individuals from diverse backgrounds, creating a space where voices are heard, perspectives are challenged, and ideas turn into action. With every edition, we have raised our standards, expanded our reach, and strengthened our community. Now, as we step into Alora 3.0, we carry forward this journey with renewed energy and a larger vision—aiming to inspire the next generation of leaders, diplomats, and changemakers. Alora stands as a testament to growth, resilience, and the belief that even the smallest idea can evolve into something extraordinary.

Letter from the Founder

What started as just a random thought—something so simple it almost didn't feel real—has grown into something far beyond what I ever imagined. Today, in its third edition, Alora Summit has brought together 1000+ delegates, each one adding their voice, passion, and story to this journey.

There were moments of doubt, uncertainty, and times when things didn't go as planned, but the belief in creating something meaningful never faded. Alora Summit was never just about Model United Nations—it was about building a space where individuals feel heard, gain confidence, and discover their true potential. Watching this vision come to life through all of you makes every challenge worth it.

Every delegate, every conversation, every moment has shaped what Alora Summit is today. This journey is as much yours as it is mine—and this is only the beginning. And as we continue to grow, I hope Alora Summit remains a place where ideas turn into impact and voices turn into change. The best is yet to come.
